

Profile

Saswat Samay Das is an Associate Professor in the Department of Humanities and Social Sciences, Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur, India. His research aims at critically engaging with assemblages of New Humanities, such as Deleuze and Guattari Studies, Decolonial Studies, Postcolonial Studies, New Materialism, Post-Humanism, Speculative Realism, and Environmental and Planetary Studies. He was a visiting professor at the Institute of English and American Studies, University of Oldenburg, Germany, in May, 2024 & was invited to deliver a series of lectures at Virginia Commonwealth University, USA in March, 2007. His books yield reconstructive insights into diverse contemporary issues and remain committed to producing lines of flight against deadlocking mobility of global capitalism. Some of his recent books include, Technology, Urban Space and the Networked Community (Palgrave Macmillan, 2022), Deleuze and Guattari and Terror (Edinburgh University Press, 2022) Deleuze, Guattari and the Schizoanalysis of the Global Pandemic: Revolutionary Praxis and Neoliberal Crisis. (Bloomsbury Publishing, 2023), Deleuze, Guattari and the Schizoanalysis of Post-neoliberalism (Bloomsbury, 2024), Religion, Politics and the New Materialism: Philosophical Perspectives (Springer Nature, 2025). Some of his forthcoming books are Beyond the Capitalist Economy – Creating New Media and Digital Networks (Palgrave Macmillan) and Towards Planetary Justice: Reinventing the Postcolonial through Deleuze and Zizek (Routledge). He has published in well-known international journals such as Philosophy in Review, Deleuze Studies, Cultural Politics, Contemporary South Asia, Gender, Place and Culture, e-Tropic, Postcolonial Studies, Green Letters, and Economic and Political Weekly.